Open the beautiful gates and pass by the koi pond stream, tropical waterfalls, outdoor jacuzzi into this magical two-story 8,400+ square foot hillside home. Truth is, it feels and looks more like a 5-star resort. Located in a prestigious gated community, Hawaii Loa Ridge. This home is grand in both vision and scale. The walls of glass capture breathtaking 270 degree ocean and mountain views including on most days the neighboring islands of Molokai, Maui and Lanai. Want more room space? The five ensuite bedrooms can be converted into seven ensuite bedrooms, adding additional living space to a home that already boasts an elevator, personal gym and 4 car garage with AC.

Aloha from Maresa

Say Aloha! Send editorial & advertising inquiries to info@lhmhi.com

Spring is a lovely, albeit transitional, time of year. You've likely spent the first couple months of the New Year enthused with new goals and successes, and your energy might be starting to wane. But don't let a seasonal slump slow you down. Take this time to refresh your personal and professional to-do lists with a bit of spring-cleaning. Remove the clutter and focus on the things that serve you, make you smile, and help you reach your goals.

If one of your goals is nabbing an oceanfront getaway in Hawaii, look no further than this issue's cover home. Kahakai 25 in the community of Kohanaiki, pairs thoughtful craftsmanship with exquisite details that welcome all the pleasures of indoor-outdoor Kona living and entertaining. For more information on this stunning Big Island dwelling, presented by Kohanaiki Realty LLC, turn to pages 12 and 13.

Thank you for taking the time to pick up the magazine, read this note, and share some Aloha. We appreciate you!

Mahalo,

Princeville, Kauai | 4,694 SQFT
225.98 Acres | 4BR/4BA
MLS# 652411 | $27,000,000

The Hanalei Bison Ranch, located in the heart of Kauai's North Shore, consists of over 225 acres of riverfront land made up of 4 individual parcels of varying topography. The property includes one residential dwelling, set high on a bluff with incredible views of Hanalei valley, mountains and the ocean. From the bluff, the land descends to a riverside plateau offering additional home sites, agricultural improvements and further development potential. There are currently bison, fish and fruit being grown and raised on site. The lower flat lands act as the bison ranch and agriculture grounds and the higher elevations serve as the residential sites facing west with stunning ocean views and year round sunsets.

HUMMING ING BIRD CAY

A Private Island in Exuma, Bahamas

By Mary Anne Bruno

Let me take you to a place where only the owner's family and invited guests have known to go for decades. Jeneice, the island's self-titled "domestic maid," says the Southern Cays are the sweetest and best. Consulting to refresh the dwellings, revitalize and energize private island Hummingbird Cay (HBC), was an experience of a lifetime.

Arriving at Exuma International Airport was breathtaking, and astronauts were right; the Bahamas collective miles of islands are "the most beautiful," and unique sight "from the sky." I reminisced of my own island home during a short ride with Smitty's taxi through Georgetown, on what it was once like in the '60s and '70s. The experience continued when Sam, "caretaker" for HBC, picked me up by boat alongside my associate Elle at Moss Town dock; it was a concrete driveway to a bay off a dirt road familiar to locals. He whisked us off on intoxicating aqua-blue waters. I could hear my client/friend saying, "the ocean and the clouds are... well, you'll just have to see for yourself." Baby-blue, cotton candy clouds appeared genuine by colors reflected from the sea together with an ensemble of the sun setting against periwinkle skies and the electrifying horizon in orange, red and pink hues. We arrive within 20 minutes by the private island's water taxi to a quaint and perfectly protected docking station, and are greeted by a streamlined shark and other beautiful marine life. As I set foot on the solid archipelago limestone island, it dawned on me that very moment: Hummingbird Cay would forever change me.

"Dad used to sit on the deck, and the seabirds would fly over to him every time," says my friend. Joey and Harold arrived days later to film our progress and capture the inquisitive feathered friends in flight almost daily. As I learned about the island's natural resources, it made me want to bring home a lifestyle more like HBC. The morning brew is freshly picked organic "strongback herbal tea," so smooth and mellow tasting for any time of the day; there are many other varieties, but this was everyone's favorite. Dinner fare was freshly caught snapper, grouper and barracuda from a "Bahamian hand-reel." No need for a pole of any kind. The catching was quick and easy for any novice. The fish danced on my taste bud's imagination with thoughts of sashimi carpaccio with jalapeno, grouper on a BBQ, barracuda marinated and seared in a cast-iron skillet. A popular side dish is freshly grown and picked green peas mixed with rice or simply buttered.

Nearby, within walking distance, is a freshwater table well only found on limited Cays, including HBC out of the 365 Cays. A photovoltaic (PV) system provides electricity to all the dwellings, which gives an ease of comfort knowing you are using the sun's energy to generate electricity each day. We showered in reverse osmosis saltwater, which left no salt residue on the body—a great gift from the sea. It was a simple reminder of the respect that went into the long-term thinking for this beautiful private island by its owners.

Many Tufts University, Exuma High School students, professors, and the island's guests have walked a thousand footsteps through these beautiful, forested trees and ferns. Researching as study groups or individuals on the approximate 236 acres of HBC, they were offered housing on the island, including meals served in a separate kitchen and dining setting each day.

A rare find is a beach fronting the westside, which can be accessed by a walk from the bungalows or a quick boat ride. We utilized both and on our walk home, saw butterflies; from the boat, we witnessed a large stingray swimming gracefully out to sea from the shoreline. This pristine beach is one of the longest, most secluded white sand beaches you'll find on any of the 365 Cays. Your footprints may be the only ones on this private oasis until the next family member or guest sets foot on it again. There is no light pollution, so you can gaze upon the bright stars and Milky Way at night. A conch revitalization project includes tanks that can facilitate the project forward.

LONGEST,
MOST SECLUDED
WHITE SAND BEACHES”

Diversified with natural resources; flora, fauna, insects, vertebrates, marine life, iguanas, swimming pigs, crystallized salt ponds, striking colors of its oceans, clouds, sun, moon, and twinkling stars. Everything and everyone appear to coexist naturally. The culture is rich in history, timeless in evolution and equitable in its peoples' sophistication. It's a step back in time in a modern-day world, in which people of fast-paced lives yearn for the experience of an unhurried and languid destination. Looking on the Bahamas islands from the sky, Hummingbird Cay stands out—it's shaped like a Hersey's Kiss. This private island offers unforgettable experiences for the most discriminating. ■

Mary Anne Bruno is Principal Broker and President of MOKULANI Properties, inc; she's an island girl at heart, born in Japan, and grew up from the age of five on O'ahu, Hawai'i. "The invitation to HBC by the owners was naturally exciting. The island's beauty was so much more than I imagined and perfectly expressed in the song 'Home on the Islands,' sung by Brothers Cazimero. I want to thank the owner of Hummingbird Cay for a life-transforming experience, as there is no better feeling for me than spending my life in the middle of the sea."
